FAVERSHAM TO TRY IAGO.

Hard Luck With "Julius Caesar" and Will Stick to Shakespeare.

William Faversham, who will sail this morning on the Oceanic, said last night that his plans for next season include at least two Shakespearean revivals on an even more elaborate scale than his production of "Julius Caesar" last fall.

He will produce "Othello" and "Hamlet," and possibly "Henry VIII." The productions will be mounted and built in London by Joseph Barker, who was responsible for the stage equipment of "Julius Caesar."

In "Othello" Mr. Faversham will play Iago, his wife, Julie Opp, Emilia, R. D. MacLean, Othello and Desdemona. In "Hamlet," Mr. Faversham will return to America in August, opening his season in Canada and going to the Pacific coast. He will be accompanied to England by his wife and their two sons, Philip and William, Jr.

"Peace Be With You!"

BERNHARDT IN TEARS ACCEPTS THE CROWN

Near Riot at Palace Theatre as Her Profession Honors Actress.

MODEL OF GOLD WREATH

"My Dear Public: Thank You!" She Cries in English All Can Hear.

Just before the curtain rose on "The Nix of Noel," which Mme. Bernhardt presented yesterday afternoon at the Palace Theatre, Daniel Frohman, president of the Actors Fund of America, announced from the stage that immediately after the one act play, the invited guests grouped themselves on the stage. Mme. Bernhardt occupied the center, while on either side stood the speakers, Daniel Frohman, David Belasco, E. M. Holland and Mrs. Thomas Whiffen. The stage was crowded with celebrities who, with more than a hundred others, had subscribed for the wreath.

The orchestra played the "Marsellaise" as the curtain was raised and the audience stood without prompting. Then Mr. Frohman said:

"The laurel wreath which is to be given to Madame Bernhardt will be a wreath of gold, but in the short time at the committee's disposal it could not be finished. We shall exhibit to her to-day only the model from which the completed wreath will be finished in a few weeks, when a special messenger will be sent to Paris to deliver it to Madame Bernhardt in the name of the American theatrical profession."

"It has been fashioned by Mr. Guillot of Marcus & Co. and its design approved by John W. Alexander, and we are assured that it is the very latest Parisian fashion in gold laurel wreaths."

David Belasco, who followed Mr. Frohman, said:

"As long as I live this will remain the happiest and proudest moment in my life. All I can say is that throughout all my career this great and dear lady has always been my inspiration. I kiss her hand. God bless her."

Mrs. Whiffen, who handed the wreath to Mme. Bernhardt, spoke in French. She said:

"Mme. Bernhardt, the greatest and most wonderful actress, I have the honor and great pleasure of presenting to you on the part of the artists of America this crown."

When Mme. Bernhardt rose to accept the gift there was a tumult. It was some time before she could speak, and when she did she addressed the audience and in English said there was a decided accent, but the audience could understand.

With her arms extended and tears streaming down her cheeks, the actress said, in tones that could be heard in all parts of the theatre:

"My dear public, I cannot find the words to express all that is in my heart. I cry out with all my soul: 'Thank you, thank you, my dear public! Thank you, my dear brothers, thank you, thank you, with all my heart, Farewell! Adieu!'"

Then the curtain went down, but the audience remained. It remained half an hour longer until a photograph of Mme. Bernhardt and her friends had been taken.

MOHONK SPEAKERS TALK ON CANAL TOLLS

Charlemagne Tower Says That Treaties Require Equality With Great Britain.

EXEMPTION CLAUSE HIT

Prof. Johnson Declares American Public Should Not Bear Burden of Free Tolls.

MOHONK LAKE, May 16.—Addresses on the Panama Canal tolls controversy between the United States and British Governments occupied most of today's session of the conference on international arbitration.

The speakers were Charlemagne Tower, former Ambassador to Germany; Prof. Emory H. Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania; Representative Joseph R. Knowland of California; Thomas Baeburn White of Philadelphia and Don C. Seitz of the New York World.

Mr. Tower spoke on "The Treaty Obligations of the United States Relating to the Panama Canal." He said:

"The Clayton-Bulwer treaty became the foundation for the understanding between ourselves and Great Britain and provided for an absolute equality between them in regard not only to the protection which they united to give to an interoceanic communication that should be established, but also formally declared that both Governments should approve of any charges or conditions of traffic that is to say tolls that might be imposed, and that no such tolls should be imposed in fact which had not the approval and consent of both Governments."

Mr. Tower then referred to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which superseded the Clayton-Bulwer convention, and continued:

"This is not an obscure subject. On the contrary, the United States entered freely and openly into these treaties and the situation is one that we have created for ourselves."

"We negotiated with Great Britain always with the understanding upon our part that she was to be upon the same footing as ourselves in regard to the canal; and she accepted, yielding the advantages that she had acquired in order to comply with our plans. It is not a question now as to whether we made a good bargain or a bad one—but it is of great importance to the American people that the United States Government shall fulfill its engagements and shall carry out loyally its international obligations."

Representative Knowland declared that a repeal of the toll provision of the canal bill would be an abject surrender of American rights.

Mrs. Elmer E. Black of New York awarded a prize to Miss Mary A. Matthews of Rochester, a freshman in the Rochester Athenaeum and Mechanics Institute, for the best essay on "International Peace." This competition was open to women college students.

BISHOP DOANE DIES; LED CHURCH IN STATE

Head of Albany Diocese and a Powerful Figure in City's Affairs.

WAS 81 IN LAST MARCH

Last in the Public Eye When He Called a Suffrage Hike "Stilly."

The Right Rev. William Crosswell Doane, Episcopal Bishop of Albany and perhaps the best known clergyman of the Episcopal Church in the country, died at 12:05 o'clock this morning in his apartment at the Hotel Manhattan.

Bishop Doane's two daughters, his physician, Dr. Hart, were with the Bishop when he died. It was said at the hotel this morning. None of the family nor Dr. Hart could be disturbed, the hotel said, to learn further particulars.

The Bishop and his family came to the Manhattan last Tuesday. At the time of his arrival there were no signs of illness of a dangerous nature, so that observers could not expect that Bishop Doane's years seemed to weigh upon him with exceptional heaviness.

But the illness that was so rapidly to end fatally soon compelled the Bishop to take to his bed.

The weakness of the aged churchman became so pronounced that the family finally summoned Dr. Hart in alarm. Dr. Hart was in attendance upon his patient constantly last night, but despite his efforts Bishop Doane became unconscious at midnight and died a few minutes later.

At the early hour this morning at which this is being written there is no definite information forthcoming as to the funeral arrangements.

With the dying Bishop were Miss M. D. Gardner, Miss Murray and Mrs. Doane, his nearest living kin.

William Crosswell Doane had been Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Albany for forty-four years when death came to him. He was consecrated as Bishop on February 2, 1869.

He was born in Boston March 2, 1832, making him past 81 years old at the time of his death. His father, George Washington Doane, was the second Bishop of New Jersey.

He was graduated from Burlington College, New Jersey, in 1850, and became a priest in the Protestant Episcopal Church and rector of St. Mary's Church at Burlington in 1853. After seven years there he went to St. John's Church at Hartford, Conn., and in 1861 became rector of St. Peter's Church at Albany.

At that time there was only one diocese of the Episcopal Church in New York State, with Horatio Potter, uncle of the late Bishop Henry Clay Potter, as its head. The General Convention of 1868 authorized the formation of the Albany diocese, the second in the State, and the young rector of St. Peter's was elected Bishop by joint vote of clergy and laity of the new diocese.

In the first year of his episcopate he founded St. Agnes's School for Girls at Albany. When the school was well under way the new Bishop set himself to the task of building up a cathedral organization. The result of his labors in this direction was the St. Andrew's Cathedral.

He then turned to a series of homes and other institutions of the church, which were founded and under his patronage. When the school was well under way the new Bishop set himself to the task of building up a cathedral organization. The result of his labors in this direction was the St. Andrew's Cathedral.

He was known wherever he went, throughout the country, by his blue breeches and buttoned leggings such as were worn in England a century ago as a hallmark of the English clergyman.

The Bishop was a leader in the fight of his Church against divorce, and his influence was regarded as one of the main causes behind the Church's action against the remarriage by a priest of an Episcopal Church of the guilty party to a divorce.

One of the latest opportunities which Bishop Doane had of making a pronouncement on questions of public policy came in December last when he commented on the band of suffragettes who had just walked into Albany from New York. He called them "stilly" women, and said that he had no faith in their cause. The Bishop was consequently outspoken in his antagonism to woman suffrage.
